Come along and spend a morning at the wonderful Holland Park Kindergarten, exploring fabulous learning spaces and talk about sustainability education with early childhood colleagues. These invaluable professional networking meetings are a wonderful opportunity to refresh your own practice, reflect with the host service on their journey while also taking the opportunity to engage in professional conversations with others. Following on from the wonderful rich conversations from our previous networking meeting, the theme for discussion will be risk and resilience. Sustainability education is risky business! How do you engage risk and foster resilience in your practice with children and adults? How have you scaffolded children and families for success? What about your personal resilience? Please bring along ideas or examples to share.

Don't forget your share, swap and sell items for our upcycling table.
